Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 08 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Turning unsettled overnight with thundery showers possible on Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Staying dry with clear spells through the evening, although turning cloudier from the south overnight with the chance for showers. These showers could turn heavy and thundery at times. Remaining warm. Minimum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Thursday:
A cloudy start for many with some showers and some bright or sunny spells. Heavy, possibly thundery showers developing for the afternoon. Warm, though cooler than of late. Maximum temperature 23 deg C (73 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Friday to be unsettled with outbreaks of rain or showers, locally heavy and perhaps thundery. Saturday and Sunday becoming drier but largely cloudy with some light patchy rain or drizzle.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.